

We secure your information

At Main Street Bank, we are committed to protecting your accounts and personal information. Our online banking systems use various methods, tools, and processes to accomplish this, including:

Encryption: When you begin the login process, the exchange of information over the Internet is encrypted. This means the information is scrambled in such a way that it cannot be read by anyone other than you and Main Street Bank.

Automatic Logoff: To protect your account and privacy, your online banking session will be automatically terminated after period of activity.

Authentication: Most of our systems require enhanced authentication from time to time to verify a user's credentials or activity.

Dual approval: Some systems may require one individual to initiate a payment and a second individual to approve it. If you are interested in this additional protection contact your account representative.

Monitoring: We are always monitoring our systems to prevent any potential problems that could compromise security or privacy.
